1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claims 1 and 6 are indefinite since it is not clear what is intended by "each separately" (claim 1, line 4 and claim 6, lines 3-4).

Correction is required without new matter.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by King et al (6,451,365, cols. 7-9). King et al discloses treating the inside surface of sausage casings with a composition including hop acids or derivatives thereof, e.g.

hop alpha acids, hop beta acids, in order to prevent Listeria contamination in meat products encased therein.

6. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wilhoit (5,573,801, col. 8) in view of Millis et al (Abstract). Wilhoit discloses treating the inside surface of cellulosic casings with a bacteriocin to inhibit the growth of Listeria in meat products encased therein. The bacteriocin will transfer to said meat products. It would have been obvious to substitute hop beta acids for the bacteriocin used in Wilhoit since hop beta acids used alone are known to protect processed meat products, e.g. hot dogs, against Listeria contamination, as evidenced by Millis et al. It is conventional to heat and smoke encased meat products (claims 8 and 10).
